

Health and social protection

ACTIVITY REPORT

2023

The year 2023 was rich in strategic developments in the health and social protection sectors, both in France and around the world.

In France, the Presidential Development Council and the Inter-ministerial Committee for International Cooperation and Development laid down the key priorities for the country's development actions. France's new global health strategy constitutes an operational roadmap for AFD Group operations, which focus on the human resources needed to achieve universal health coverage.

Meanwhile, 2023 saw widespread recognition of the role of health and social protection in meeting global challenges. At COP28, an entire day was devoted for the first time to the interactions between health and climate change. Health and social protection are now a core aspect of the climate agenda and constitute an asset to promote the social acceptability of ecological transitions.

In line with these priorities, AFD Group continues to strive for adaptive and inclusive health and social protection systems, which are crucial for achieving the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). Thanks to their wide range of technical and financial tools, AFD, Proparco, and Expertise France offer their partners solutions tailored to today's needs and tomorrow's challenges.

AFD Group's priorities in health and social protection

Two issues are at the heart of the 2023-2027 France's global health strategy and the 2023 Inter-ministerial Committee for International Cooperation and Development: human resources for health and pandemic preparedness and response in a "One Health" approach.

In line with this strategy, and through its investments, AFD continues to promote universal health coverage and stronger social protection and health systems through three key priorities.

Our priorities for action

Common goods for health

AFD Group provides support to institutions that carry out essential functions for health systems, such as regulation, epidemiological surveillance, and health promotion. The roll-out of a One Health approach - which incorporates human, animal, and environmental health - represents the common thread of its actions.

Service delivery: human resources and resilient infrastructure

In light of the worldwide shortage of healthcare personnel, AFD Group helps countries in their efforts to improve the quality and quantity of human resources in this sector. In order to improve the quality of service delivery, AFD Group combines its human resources-oriented actions with investments in lower-emission and more sustainable infrastructure.

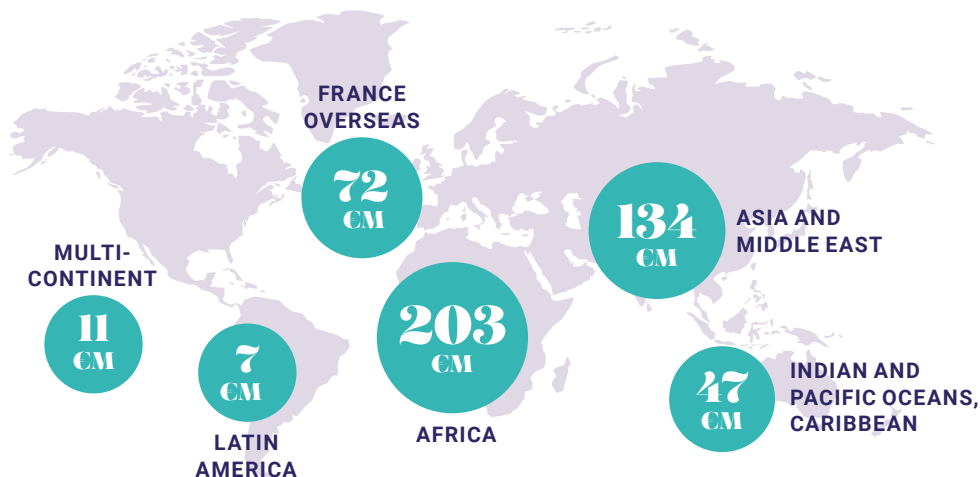

Social protection systems

AFD Group works to strengthen and reform national social protection systems. The aim is to protect individuals from life risks and external shocks (e.g., from climate change, economic crises, or epidemics).

Pakistan

A Gates Foundation-AFD partnership for health

AFD has allocated a first round of financing to the Government of Pakistan, to increase the resilience of the health system and the population. It supports the national program to eradicate polio by 2026, with the objective of making the achievements of the polio program sustainable. The partnership focuses on the surveillance of communicable diseases, vaccination, and increasing the involvement of women in health projects. This operation is AFD's first blending of loans and grants with the Gates Foundation.

Capitalizing on our support for laboratories

AFD, which has provided support to bolster health laboratories for many years, carried out a cluster evaluation of such projects financed recently. This evaluation highlighted the benefits of these projects in access to diagnostics, the quality of laboratory services, and epidemiological surveillance capacities in the targeted countries. It has enabled AFD and its key partners to identify the best practices to promote.

Madagascar

Expanding health product availability

AFD provides support to Salama, Madagascar's central medical store, to optimize the availability, accessibility, and affordability of health products throughout the country. This project, co-financed by the European Union, seeks to improve Salama's management and investment capacities as well as increase its storage capacities by building new decentralized warehouses.

Africa

Afroscreen – enhancing genomic sequencing in Africa

The Afroscreen project works to enhance genomic sequencing capacities in Africa. It has gradually expanded its surveillance activities from Covid-19 to emerging or re-emerging infectious pathogens, using a One Health approach. The project, which has been implemented by ANRS, IRD and Institut Pasteur since 2021, has culminated in 34 training courses and about 8,000 screening tests in support of 77 sentinel sites in 11 countries. Teams from the African laboratories working on the project were involved in sequencing the monkeypox virus and in dealing with the Marburg epidemic in Equatorial Guinea.

A global dialog on climate and health

AFD is involved in international discussions on decarbonizing and adapting the health sector to the challenges of climate change:

- We co-organized the first edition of the "One Sustainable Health for All" forum (Lyon, July 5 to 7) to draw up recommendations on how to put the One Health approach into action;
- We participated in four high-level events at COP28, with special emphasis on highlighting the key role of development banks in supporting the global agenda on health, social protection, and climate change.

Service delivery

AFD Group is expanding its investments to boost human resources (a crucial issue for health systems), and prioritizes financing low-carbon infrastructure.

Côte d'Ivoire

Supporting the national policy for human resources for health

AFD supports the national program for human resources for health launched by the government in 2016. This support seeks to expand, decentralize, and improve the quality of initial and continuous training for medical and paramedical personnel in the country. It also helps bolster the governance and regulation of this sector. Expertise France is implementing a technical assistance program to support these reforms with the use of expertise from the French public sector.

Supporting the development of the private health sector

In May, Proparco signed an agreement to invest in Quadria Capital's third fund. The goal is to raise and deploy close to US $1 billion to fund investment by healthcare companies in private hospitals and clinics. This fund contributes to the development of good-quality, affordable, and accessible medical services in areas where they are not available or lacking.

Facilitating women's empowerment and reduction of inequalities in the workplace

AFD is mobilizing Expertise France for a regional program to bolster women's empowerment and reduce gender inequalities in the three targeted countries. This support is provided in both the personal and professional spheres by developing childcare services, organizing the care sector, and improving both working conditions for women and gender equality in the workplace. Asia and the Pacific

Strengthening communities' resilience to climate change shocks

Since 2021, AFD has been co-financing the Community Resilience Partnership Program launched by the Asian Development Bank to help people in countries of the region deal with climate change shocks. The partnership stemming from this pooling of resources created dynamics that raised US $120 million in co-financing from the Green Climate Fund. This funding brought stakeholders in the area to organize public policy dialogs on these issues, and to approve eight projects to increase community resilience in some countries.

Developing an offer to support the just energy transition

To support workers, communities, and regions affected by the withdrawal from fossil fuels, AFD supports the social dialogue and reforms needed to mitigate the inequalities that result from this transition. This support will be developed into financial operations in 2024.

As part of the Support Fund for Feminist Organizations, AFD supports a consortium of NGOs led by Fos Feminista to reduce the structural factors of menstrual discrimination in nine countries (Benin, Cameroon, Côte d'Ivoire, Guinea, Nigeria, Pakistan, the Philippines, Haiti, and the Dominican Republic). This grant supports feminist organizations working to improve young girls' access to health services and menstrual hygiene products. It also encourages local production of those products.

West Africa

Promoting a regional approach to sexual and reproductive health

Since 2017, AFD has been supporting the West African Health Organization (WAHO), an ECOWAS specialized agency, in strengthening its actions to promote the health of mothers and youth. WAHO carried out consultation and dialogues with the ECOWAS Member States, which led to the adoption of an ECOWAS Council of Ministers directive in 2022 on sexual and reproductive health. WAHO then worked on promoting and disseminating this directive in 2023. This work will continue in 2024 to ensure its transposition at Member State level.

AFD at the Women Deliver conference in Rwanda

As a feminist agency, AFD organized a panel discussion at Women Deliver, the international conference to protect the rights of women and gender minorities. This sixth edition of Women Deliver was held in Rwanda, in July. The panel discussion brought together key AFD partners and emphasized the need to "catalyze action to address the neglected challenges of sexual and reproductive health and rights".
